WHAT IS SIN FRONTERAS 2018?
Sin Fronteras 2018 is a summer sessions course that takes place in Oaxaca, Mexico. The course is intended for Social Work students interested in deepening their understanding of effective and culturally responsive international social work practice.

WHY OAXACA?
Many indigenous traditions remain relatively intact in Oaxaca, making it a hub for the arts, history, archeology, architecture, gastronomy, and traditional healing practices.

Sin Fronteras participants will gain a transnational perspective as they build their language skills and explore their own cultural values and biases. By participating in Sin Fronteras, Latinx and non-Latinx social work students will be immersed in Oaxacan culture; in doing so, they will be exposed to a myriad of culturally-rooted resources and strengths that will inform their practice with Mexican and other Latinx immigrant communities in California.

Sin Fronteras is an experiential learning experience that includes:
- Convivencia: interacting and collaborating with local students, host families, and other community members
- Tequio: an indigenous tradition whereby all community members pitch in and “give back”
- Participation in cultural events and travel to local communities
- Spanish-language instruction: levels ranging from advanced-beginning to technical Spanish for fluent Spanish-speakers
- Coursework taught by local faculty in psychology, traditional medicine, history and sociology
- Integration seminar

WHERE WILL I STAY WHILE IN MEXICO?
Housing will be arranged by Becari Tonanzin, our partner language school. There are two housing options:

- Students can stay with local host families in or near downtown Oaxaca, where they are provided with private rooms, breakfast and lunch.

- Students will also have the option to stay in an apartment with another student (this option is slightly more costly and does not include meals).
